Definition

Direct on-site supervision is the physical presence, at all times, of a Medical Laboratory Technologist (MLT) holding a valid Active: Practicing Certificate to Practice (in the case of Cytology or Clinical Genetics the supervising MLT must have a valid Active: Practicing Certificate to Practice in the relevant discipline). The MLT will oversee activities/work as they occur and provide constant direction, feedback and assistance. The supervising MLT is ultimately responsible for all of the reported patient results and work-related activities.

At no time shall the MLT holding a Conditional Certificate to Practice be allowed to work alone.
